HEADQUARTERS FOR EVAPORATED FRUITS

The Wallerstein Produce Company of this City Now Lead the Country.

WON THE MEDALS AT JAMESTOWN

Evaporated Apples the Specialty of the Big Firm on Thirteenth Street.

Whatever else may be said of the Jamestown Exposition, there was no favorilism when it came to awarding premiums, and the people receiving medals, diplomas and awards may well be proud of them, for they are indeed evidences of merit, it has been said that the Richmond exhibits at Jamestown were not as numerous as they might have been. That is probably true, and it is also true, as has been said, that those which were made were upto-date and in every way worthy of Richmond.

Among these worthy exhibits it is likely that none attracted more attention, and deserved more attention, than that made by the Wallerstein Produce Company, of this city. They bought their space and made their own show without State or municipal help.

The fact is that this company made two displays that were separate and distinct, and on each of them they obtained gold medals, because therewere none among the numerous exhibits along the same lines that compared with theirs.

Wen Against Strong Opposition.

The gold medal which the Wallerstein Company obtained on their oxhibit of evaporated and sun-dried fruits was won against decided opposition from California, Kentucky and Florida exhibitors, and as a matter of fact the judges were rather predisc posed toward the other exhibits, lest they might be accused of favoring Virginia. But they were there to consider merit, and in all honesty they were compelled to award the highest badge to the Wallerstein Produce Company, of this city.

The exhibit, which had been arranged by Mr. Joseph Wallerstein, was in every respect creditable, but it was no more than can be seen any day in the week at the big warerooms and factory of the Wallerstein, was in every respect creditable, but it was no more than can be seen any day in the week at the big warerooms and factory of the Wallerstein Produce Company, Nos. 19-21 South Thirteenth Street, in this city.

A Side Show.

The display of wools shown at Jamestown by the Wallerstein Company gave evidence of what Virginia is doing in the matter of sheep-raising and wool production. The Wallersteins, who handle wool from every section of the State, had their exhibit so arranged that it gave the visitor a complete idea of the different varieties of wool that the Old Dominion can produce and does produce. This exhibit was intensely interesting, and attracted the attention of wool-growers from the West, who were surprised to know that Virginia is right alongside of them in the matter of sheep-raising and in marketing wool. However, the wool show was merely aside issue.

Fruits in Their Better State.

Fruits in Their Better State.

The most interesting exhibit of the Wallerstein Produce Company was that of evaporated fruits, principally apples Few Richmond people know the importance of the dried fruit business as transacted in this city, and the few who do know of it would probably bever have heard of it if the Wallerstein Company had not made it one ransacted in this city, and the few ransacted in this city, and the few who do know of it would probably the rank heard of it if the Wallerstein Company had not made it one of the important industries of the city in the ci of the important industries of the city, in industry that employs a large number of people and that gives Richmond an enlarged importance in the markets of the world.

The Richmond Factory.

The Richmond Factory.

At their warerooms and factory on Fairteenth Street the company has installed modern machinery that cost housands of dollars. They buy the fried fruits of all funds from all over he country, as far West as California, more largely from the Virginia or-bards, and, by an evaporating process of their own, they handle these fruits and pack them in a way that gives the retailer and the consumer a fruit ready for table use that is in most respects equal to the fresh fruit just from the trees.

Worldwide Trade,

While the process, known only to the Wallerstein Company, encompasses all manner of fruits, and they pack peaches, berries of all kinds, cherries, plams, and whatever they can buy on the market in their early state, the fact is that their specialty is evapousted apples, and on these goods they nave built up a trade that has given richmond a reputation for business and "git-up-a-tiveness" in States to the Southwas far as Tordia, to the Southwas far as Tordia, to the Southwas far as the extreme border of Texas.

The reputation of the packed fruits of the Wallerstein Produce Company has gone further still—beyond the waters of the Atlantic. Their famous brands of evaporated apples have become standard in England, Germany and France.

Names They Go By.

In the Thirteenth Street factory these evaporated apples are packed in paper cartons, and these are nailed down in wooden cases and these cases are shipped all away the regions named above. These evaporated apples go out from Richmond in these paper cartons under four distinctive brands, and the little taper boxes that hold these fruits and ear the name of Richmond all over the more of the brands are simple in name, but they are becoming house hold words in every home that has a kitchen, not only in this country, but in Europe. They are "Winegan" 'Pledmont." 'King," and "Dime Brand.' Every box of evaporated Fruit that bears either of the above names is warranted to be A1 and strictly first class.

While apples, the evaporated apples, are the mainstay of the Wallerstein Produce Company, they handle and pack other fruit; indeed, all kinds. They send out raisins of their own packing after having purchased the aw goods in car load lots in the California markets, thus giving Richmond a place in the commercial world it has not always occupied. They also buy and pack all kinds of Virginia fruits and products, not overlooking the humble walnut kernel. They made a specialty of old Virginia pens and beans, and heap are probably the largest exporters of these goods south of New York.

Helping to Make Richmond Great.

The factory on Thirteenth Street is outpped with modern machinery, and imploys about seventy-five hands every lay in the year to manage and operate he evaporating and packing machines ind to properly distribute the fruits for the various box packing machines. The Wallerstein Produce Companyist undoubtedly made Richmond a issut distributing centre, but the company has never abandoned its original line—that of handling all manner of Virginia produce—and their commission house, on the first floor of Nos. 19-21 Thirteenth Street, is still head-quarters for all manner of Virginia produce, from the common black pea up to the most aristocratic turkey, or the most delicate vegetable, from the tender egg plant to the vigorous turnip or Irish potato.

The Wallerstein Produce Company is a strong concern, financially and otherwise. The officers are Joseph W. Wallerstein, president; Samuel Wallerstein, secretary and treasury, and Henry S. Wallerstein, vice-president. The company is Incorporated, and is regarded as one of the strongest in Richmond.

The horses consist of Southern Chunks, some extra good of the horses consist of Southern Chunks, some Heavy Draft.

We have on hand a hundred of as good Mules as you have seen in a long time—all fat, smooth, young and extra good.

We will try hard to sell all of this stuff next Wednesday, and hope, if you are in need of anything, that you will be with us, as we would like to kind of clean up for the last of the year and start anew.

Our horses are fat and smooth and extra good, and if you can handle any we hope you will make an extra effort to be with us.
